The conflict is significant to the nations directly involved. also represents basically different approach; to a "United States of Europe" as advocated by the United States of America on the one hand and Great Britain on the other. Both the "Inner Six" and the Seven" groups, set up to knock down barriers within the "Inner Six" octually goes operating costs. much further than trade. Its members see it as the beginning of a programme which will link Europe politically.

It has had the firm support of the United States on the theory that a United Europa would greatly strengthen the defensive capabilities of the North Atlantic Treaty Alliance.

That it also might divide Europe had not been foreseen. The division arises from the fact that the common market of the Inner Six also requires the surrender of a certain amount of rovereignty. Britain was especially unwilling to do this. The British believe economic political matters should remain separate. Seeing itself thereby shut out from the common market and fearing the effects on its own trade, Britain therefore hastily set up the "Outer Seven."

of light atoms

A PART from the big developments made in Britain in the last few years in obtaining electric power by the fission (or splitting) of heavy atoms—at Calder Hall, Dounreay and other pioneer nuclear power stations - investigations have been made into another possible way of obtaining energy. This is by the fusion (or joining) of light atoms, such as those of hydrogen.

HORROR HORSE TRAFFIC

London, Jan. 17. Several British newspapers today give prominence to horrific reports traffic in horses for the meat market between Dublin and Paris.

Correspondents of the Daily Herald, Daily Mirror and Daily Telegraph describe the arrival of Irish horses in Paris for their dispatch in slaughterhouses

Banner headlines across the Daily Herald's front page read: "Horror of the doomed horses: I see brutality and death in the

Their reporter writes: "Dying and frozen to utter helplessness, Communist shore batteries 137 Irlsh horses met their journey's end here today in scenes more horrible than I have ever witnessed."

The Daily Mirror splashes a similar report across its front page under the banner headlines "Savage bloody, cruelty."

PROTEST

In Dublin today, members of organisations protesting against the export of horses konk dusk to dawn watch on Dublin's docks before the City of Waterford sailed with 143 horses for this vessel since 47 horses perished or were shot abourd her during a storm in the demonstration channel in December,

Police squad cars patrolled the docks and kept agitators at a distance while the ship was loading but newsmen were invited aboard by the shipping company and shown the loading and the accommodation provided for the animals.

HYSTERICAL

The agitation to stop the trade is being encouraged by British animal protection societies and British newspapers, and Irisn newspapers today described it as "a hysterical campaign against a legitimate trade."

The Sunday press described the agitation as misinformed and pointed out that of 234,000 horses sent to Britain and the Continent in the last eleven years the casualtles at sea were less than half of one per cent.-Special and AFP.

Police go down to Brigade's stronger pack after fine defensive display

The Police XV failed to live up to the challenge offered them on Saturday when after a fine defensive display they went down by 5 points (one goal) to 3 points (one try), to Brigade's stronger and better pack.

Kai Tak, Garrison, as expected, won easily by 27 points (three goals, four tries) to nil, their threes breaking through as they liked in a series of individual movements in the second half.

for his pains by Calderwood. In defence the Police backs were magnificent. They let only one try through, and thatlike their own started an infringement for the referee was unsighted.

. A scoreless draw would have been more apt here, though perhaps Brigade deserved the work put in by their pack.

The Brigade missed of four penalties in the first minutes when time and again the Police wing ferwards were eaught offside round the scrum as the Brigade' pack carefully held the ball in the back row in an attempt to upset the Police wing forwards and take the pressure off their own backs.

Brigade had the territorial advantage for most of this half and it was against the run of play that Police first scored.

McNiven, who played his usual sterling game throughout intercepted a pass on his own 25, and whipped through to pass on to Newton. Newton passed to Haigh who in turn sent the ball to Roberts who went, the rest of the way to score in the corner. No conversion, 0-3.

place-kicker

Brigade swung back with a strong attack. Chapman missed a drop at goal, and then Brigade had a chance to level the score with a penalty, but again they missed. It was obvious that Brigade sadly lacked a place-kicker. Finally, just before halftime Brigade who were still pressing had their efforts re-

Martindale intercepted a pass and broke through to send Wylie away. The Brigade pack backed up well, and passed the ball among themselves in a good movement until Neill came up to take the final pass and go the last few yards for a score under the posts. Wilkins converted. 3-3.

Police showed a big improvement in their forward play in the second half as the Brigade pack tired of keeping up the pressure. After ten minutes of play inside the Brigade half Police broke through but with victory staring them in the face only a few yards away, they fallered by knocking on the final pass.

Fitzgerald opened Garrison's scoring from a loose maul, ten 'yards inside the RAF half. He charged through, shouldered nside the too-high and consequantly ineffective tackles of five Alrmen and scored near the posts. McDonald converted easily, 5-0,

Just, on half-time, V. Davies got the ball from a scrum, on moments especially in the the 25, went blind and kicked ahead. He cought the RAF fullback in possession, got the ball most of the time against the and slung it out to his namesake who sent Brookes over under the posts. McDonald again converted, 10-0.

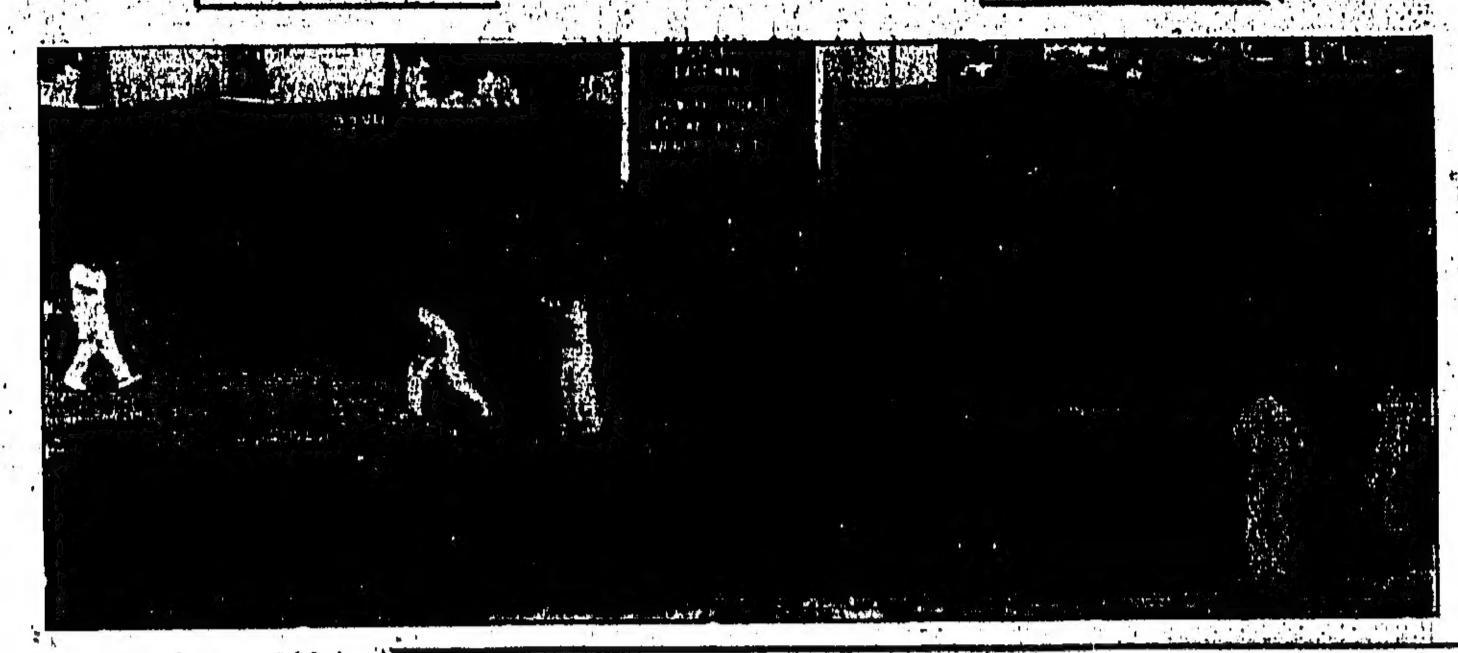

Series of scores

McDonald opened the scoring in the second half with a lovely blind-side break from a scrum on the 25. Dummying past the full back, he scored under the posts. He then converted his own try.

Then came a succession of quick scores, all touched down by Gartland. The first one was handed to him by Cleary on a , plate but the other two were the results of hard work by him. None of these tries was converted. 24-0.

Finally: McDonald broke through on the blind side, again duminled successfully and Brookes took the pass and scored well out. No conversion. beating Australia's Don Candy
